Biographies

Vent, a high-energy ensemble featuring Cristina Ballatori, flute, Christian Ellenwood, clarinet, and Matthew Sintchak, saxophone, is the University of Wisconsin-Whitewater's Faculty Woodwind Trio. Since its formation in 2016, the group has performed across the United States, dedicated to bringing new music to diverse audiences and expanding the repertoire for woodwind trio.

Cristina Ballatori, a resident of Fort Atkinson, has performed across the United States, Europe, England, and Latin America as a recitalist, soloist, chamber and orchestral musician. Performance highlights include a featured recital at the World Flutes Festival in Argentina, concerts in venues such as the Atelier Concert Series in Paris, "Live from Hochstein" Series in Rochester, New York, and artist residencies around the world. As a chamber musician, Ballatori is a member of the Semplice Duo and the Whitewater Chamber Players. Ballatori regularly appears as a guest artist and has been a featured performer, clinician, and adjudicator at many festivals, universities, and conferences including those of the National Flute Association among others. Ballatori is the recipient of numerous awards and grants including the University of Texas Outstanding Teaching Award. Ballatori joined the University of Wisconsin-Whitewater faculty in 2016 where she currently serves as Associate Professor of Flute. She previously served as Associate Professor of Flute at the University of Texas.

Christian Ellenwood, Professor of Clarinet, is a passionate recitalist, chamber musician, orchestral clarinetist, and composer. Dr. Ellenwood has performed with the Grammy Award-winning Ying Quartet, the Telluride Chamber Music Festival, the San Francisco-based Ives Quartet, the EastWind Quintet, and is frequently heard in live radio broadcasts on Wisconsin Public Radio. Dr. Ellenwood has presented solo and chamber music recitals throughout the United States and Pacific islands of Japan, Guam, and Hawaii. He is principal clarinetist with the Skylight Opera of Milwaukee, the Woodstock Mozart Festival, and Bel Canto of Milwaukee; and he performs frequently with the Milwaukee Ballet, Madison Symphony Orchestra, and the Madison Opera. His clarinet playing can be heard on the Albany Records release, Music of Chris Theofanidis, and on CD projects produced by UW-Whitewater. Ellenwood composed the final three pieces in today's program.

Matthew Sintchak has commissioned and premiered over fifty new works for the instrument. Sintchak enjoys challenging traditional notions of music performance by pushing boundaries of genre, instrumentation, medium, and style. In the genre-stretching, multi-media Visions of America project, Sintchak worked with trombonist Mark Hetzler and photographer Katrin Talbot in an amalgamation of jazz, classical, and contemporary styles with original video and photographic material. More recently, Sintchak formed the Fuse Trio, a chamber group for saxophone, clarinet, and piano with the goal of commissioning and performing "crossover" jazz/classical works. Sintchak formed the Sonict Duo, an experimental group that combines saxophone, video, and live electronics with the noted performer and composer Jeff Herriott. Drawing on a combination of commissions, existing works, and newly created works by the duo themselves, Sonict creates an entirely new aural and visual space that defies easy categorization. Sintchak has also been a member of other new music groups including Present Music and the Intergalactic Contemporary Ensemble.
